

Title: The Tower

Artist Statement: What is the mood of your piece? How did you use color, texture, and form to create/convey this mood? How did you alter your conic sections to support the mood? Sign your name at the end. (8-15 sentences)

The mood of my piece is caged, or the feeling of being caged and locked up. My colors reflect this by the use of darker colors with some red and green mixed in. The red expresses the anger that comes along with being locked up, while the green shows that sometimes it feels nice being alone and in a caged solitude. When like this, you may get a chance to think about things, relax, and be calm. The texture is a little rough, but with a smooth texture too. This again shows the uncomfortableness and anger of being caged, while the nice texture on some parts shows the calm that is sometimes there too. The form slightly resembles a tower with a balcony on one side, which makes me think of things like Rapunzel and her tower. I modified my conic sections by putting extra holes and designs in them, cutting the edges, and waving the edges. This shows how much some people hate being locked up, while other people just go with the flow.
